

A working class guy once told him you never want to say, “I was going to...”

Michael Barbarita, Managing Director/Pittsburgh, Marsh Insurance, Inc.

It was his dad, and Michael Barbarita never forgot. Whenever he spotted an opportunity, he simply went for it. The son of a sheet metal worker and a stay-at-home mom, he had a solid middle class upbringing. And he says that RMU reflected that life. He described his four years as no nonsense, no fluff, practical business education. And it gave him a chance to adapt to different cultures he had never been exposed to.

This real world experience might just be the reason that, in ten short years, Michael became a managing director of one of America’s largest insurance brokerage firms.

He no doubt found success here first, RMU class of ’72.
